H. Pylori Testing

Polyclinic Specialty Department performs the C-13 urea breath test at its on-site lab for the accurate detection of H. Pylori infection. The urea breath test is non-invasive, non radioactive, highly accurate and convenient breath test kit for the diagnosis of H. Pylori. Detecting and treating H. Pylori infection is very important as untreated infections can lead to stomach ulcers and possibly gastric cancer.

H. Pylori testing is available during the week and on Saturday by prior appointment. The cost of such testing will be slightly less than that provided at off-site laboratories and will be $85.00 including HST per test, this includes the off-site analysis.

Description of Test

This is a simple breath test to detect the bacteria helicobacter pylori that takes about 40-60 minutes to complete. First you will be asked to exhale through a straw into a small collection container. Next you will drink a small container of solution. After 30 minutes you will blow a breath of air through a straw into a second container.
